Then he flapped his wings and hopped away Over the ground of the dreadful fray, In search of a more nutritious prey, Still shouting aloud his omincus lay-War! War! War!

Still flapping his wings he hopped around To a form stretched on the ground, A human frame on an ancient mound, Still shouting aloud the doleful sound-War! War! War!

Then lightning there on the hero's breast, Where a form of beauty once found rest-Where a fond affection was ever blest-He cried as he plumed his raven crest--War! War! War!

Foon the mouldering flesh was torn apart With a raven's skill and a raven's art, Till the evil bird had reached the heart, Crying again with an angry start--War! War! War!

The heart that had once so proudly beat In the quiet home or busy street. With its hopes of life, was a raven's meat, Mixed was the song with the morsel sweet--War! War! War!

When the red moon lighted up the east, The bird of song prolonged his feast, If With his idle time from Satan leased. And hoarsely croaked like a savage beast--War! War! War!

And with fiendish pride he sank his beak, Tearing the flesh from the manly cheek, Swallowing still each quivering fleak, Whilst the echoes catch his angry shrick--War! War! War!

Then he lifts his head of the blackest dye, The blood-stained beak strikes the hero's eye, And in echoes reaching to the sky Still hoarser comes the raven's cry-War! War! War!

That cheek, that eye so kindly smiled With a loving trust so pure and mild, To bless perhaps, a wife or child, Was food for the bird that sang so wild-War! War! War!

ORIGIN OF MULES IN THE UNITED STATES .- Up to the year 1773 there were scarcely any mules to be found in the United States; those few had been imported from the West Indies, and were of a very inferior order. When Washington returned to private life at. Mount Vernon, he beeams convinced that mules would be better adapted for use in the agriculture of the Southern States, as they lived longer, were less liable to disease, require less food, and were more economical than horses. On his views becoming known to the King of Spain 110005 he sent him a Jack and two Jennies. The Jack was sixteen hands high, of a gray color, heavily made, and of sluggish disposition. About the same time he also received a Jack and some Jennies from Lafayette, which where procured on the island of Malta. These proved more ferocious and active. By crossing the breed, Washington availed himself of the best qualities of the two, and thus introduced excellent mules for farming labor into this country. Such was their superiority, that at the sale of the General's offects, one wagon team of four mules sold for $800. At this day these animals are extensively used in the Southern and Middle

i me 19, 1862-1y DR. JOHN BULL'S COMPOUND CEDRON BITTERS!

The Latest and Most Important Discovery of the Nineteeath Century.

NO MAN'S NAME IS MORE INTIMATELY N connected with the history of the Materia Medica of the United States, or more favorably known as a pioneer in medical discovery, than that of JUHN BULL, of Louisville, Ky. imitable preparation of Sarsaparilla has long stood at the head of the various compounds of that valuable drug. His compound Pectoral of Wild Cherry has become a household word throughout the West and South; and his Worm Washboards; Brooms; Cordage; Matches; Spices; Lozenges, in less than a year after their introduction, attained a reputation as widespread as the continent of North America. But the crowning glory of his life remains to be attained in his latest discovery, or rather combination, for he does not claim to have been the discoverer of CEDRON, which is the basis of the Bitters now offered to the public. That honor belongs to the native inhabitants of Central america, to whom its virtues have been known for more than two hundred years. Armed with it, the Indian bids desance to the most deadly malaria, and handle without fear the most venomous serpents. It is belief with them that while there is breath left in the body the Codron is potent to care, no mat tet what the disease may be.

While Dr. Bull is not prepared to indorse this ktravagant pretension, he is nevertheless satisfied from a thorough examination of the evidence relating to its virtues, that, as a remedy and preventive for all diseases arising from exposure either to changes of weather and climate or to the miasmatic influences, it stands without a rival, and justly deserves the reputation it has so long enjoyed in Central America and the West and its attendant train of symptoms, it acts more like a charm than a medicine. There is nothing in the whole range of the Materia Medica it in this disease.

A full account of this wonderful plant may be pensatory, pages 1887 and 1888. A series of experiments, in which Dr. Bull has been for years engaged, has just been brought to a successful termination, and he is now enabled to offer to the public a combination of Cedron with other improved tonics, the whole preserved some in the best quality of copper-distilled Bourbon whisky, which he is confident has no cqual in the world.

He might furnish a volume of certificates, but the public have long since learned to esti, ate such things at their true value. The safest plan
